Situation Update

- Approximately 81 percent of registered Syrian refugees live in host communities, whereas 19 percent live in two camps (Azraq and Za’atri) and King Abdullah Park transit centre. In host communities, a limited number of refugees have work permits and thus most are largely dependent on humanitarian assistance to meet their basic needs.

- Currently, more than 78,000 Syrians are stranded at the north-eastern border, also known as the Berm, and live in dire conditions. On 22 November, WFP, UN agencies, and international and national NGOs resumed the distribution of food and non-food assistance to the affected population. This was the first time WFP was able to reach people stranded at the Berm since August 2016.

WFP Response

- Through EMOP 200433, all eligible Syrian refugees received a monthly cash-based transfer (CBT). Pupils at camp schools received daily nutritious snacks. Welcome meals to new arrivals were provided to registered special cases at camps.

- PRRO 200537 addressed the needs of vulnerable and food insecure Jordanians affected by the economic crisis and the Syrian conflict through three major components: Food Assistance for Assets (FFA) and Food Assistance for Training (FFT) for rural households; targeted food assistance for urban vulnerable people; and capacity augmentation for the Government in the fields of food security and social safety nets.

- DEV 200478 responded to the Government’s request for WFP to resume direct food support for school children in poverty pockets. WFP Jordan distributed locally produced date bars three days per week, while the Government provided high energy biscuits and fresh fruit during the remaining two days of the school week. In 2015, WFP started to pilot the Healthy Kitchen, a homegrown school feeding programme. Thus far, WFP reached 12,000 Jordanian school children through Healthy Kitchens.

- The new Regional PRRO 200987 will replace the current EMOP 200433, PRRO 200537 and DEV 200478 starting in January 2017. Efforts under the Regional PRRO in Jordan will focus on more sustainable solutions through human capital and self-reliance support, while providing life-saving food assistance when needed. The PRRO will respond to the needs of refugees and host communities through General Food Assistance, Food for Assets (FFA), Food Assistance for Trainings (FFT), Skills Exchange and Vocational Training and School Meals programme.

Food and Nutrition Assistance

Emergency Operations:
- In November, WFP reached 421,406 Syrian refugees in host communities, and 423,156 people were reached during December. Entitlements of JOD 20 (USD 28.2) were transferred to refugees in camps and extremely vulnerable off-camp refugees, while entitlements of JOD 10 (USD 14.1) were transferred to vulnerable off-camp refugees.
- At both refugee camps (Za’atri and Azraq), WFP reached a total of 108,041 Syrian refugees via e-cards in November and 108,523 in December.
- WFP has stimulated the national economy, injecting USD 651 million in CBT and local food procurement to date, creating hundreds of jobs in the food retail sector.

Relief and Recovery:
- In partnership with UNDP, the joint skills exchange activity supported 200 Jordanians and 100 Syrians in Mafraq who benefited from skill exchange since the launch of the project in September 2016. Skills included food production, construction, carpentry and agriculture.
- In partnership with the Ministry of Agriculture, 5,500 people are benefiting from FFA/FFT activities focusing on forestry, rangeland, animal and plant production all over the country. The programme concluded at the end of November 2016.
- WFP in partnership with National Alliance Against Hunger and Malnutrition (NAJMAH) provided vocational training and on-the-job-training to 1,480 participants in November and 2,000 participants in December in four governorates (Irbid, Zarqa, Amman and Aqaba) while receiving conditional food assistance in the form of E-cards.

Support for the national school feeding programme:
- WFP’s expansion of its Healthy Kitchens model to Syrian refugees in Za’atri (formal schools) and Azraq camps (informal schools), is threefold, as it will 1) create job opportunities, especially for women; 2) ensure children eat healthy meals; and 3) inject money into the local economy by buying locally grown foods.

Food Security Sector

WFP, together with the Jordan Hashemite Charity Organisation (JHCO), co-chairs the Food Security Sector Working Group (FSSWG) in Jordan. The FSSWG provides coordination for food security partners in terms of implementation, funding and data collection, and supports capacity building. WFP and the Ministry of Agriculture have consolidated the response through the Food Security Working Group. The response will be sent to Jordan Response Plan secretariat.

Story: Moving Forward in Jordan

In 2012, the young couple Abeer and Ibrahim fled from the Syrian town of Daraa to Ramtha, north of Jordan, with their three children. Based on WFP’s targeting exercise, the family has been classified as a vulnerable household residing in communities and is receiving a monthly food entitlement valued at JOD 10 (USD 14.1) per family member through the E-card Voucher Programme. With the E-card, or “coupon” as Abeer refers to it, she is able to buy a bag of rice, sugar, salt, vermicelli, two chickens, and cooking oil every month.

When asked about her aspirations for her five-year-old daughter Mariam, Abeer says, “I want Mariam to get an education and depend on herself. Some men can be tough on their wives. If she has a job, she can fall back on her salary and rely on herself.” She adds, “I wish I had an education. I had to leave school when I was 13. Where I come from, transportation and walking distance to schools were not considered safe.”

Abeer’s family is one of hundreds of thousands of Syrian refugees living in Jordan who receive regular food assistance from WFP, thanks to support from WFP’s donors that have played a crucial role in helping Syrians cope with their life in refugee.
