World Food Programme Statement

World Food Programme is aware of a photo of one box of WFP biscuits reportedly found in a training camp in Rathedaung in July. Any manipulation of food assistance destined for needy families is classified as theft. WFP takes any allegation of food diversions very seriously and we have requested more details from the authorities and asked to see the batch number of the biscuits as this will allow us to trace its origins and distribution site. We are still waiting for these details to be provided.
