[1] 'National and local authorities' here will include government and public institution staffs or representatives from the national (Government), sub-national (regions/provinces/districts/departments, etc.) and local (communes, municipalities, villages, communities, etc.) levels. According to the specific contexts of the three countries, these can also include decentralized (elected) and/or community-based (community representatives) and/or traditional (e.g. chiefs, etc.) institution representatives

Technical and policy assistance for developing multi-year resilience strategies and programmes led by government and local authorities provided[2]	partnerships, drawing on lessons learned and experiences, undertaken at the country and regional level

[2] This expertise will essentially be supporting public institutions, including central government ministries and agencies. This can however take various forms according to the specific contexts of the three countries, in particular at the local level (for instance: central government services at local level versus decentralized institutions, with formal devolution of responsibilities and elected representatives; varying sectoral and technical mandates; etc.).
