Cross cutting results

WFP continued to provide capacity-strengthening to Government entities and other cooperating partners on gender issues mostly conducted via trainings aimed at building their knowledge, skills and integrating gender into their programmes.

WFP worked to strengthen partners' awareness of gender-based violence (GBV) and prevention of sexual exploitation and abuse (PSEA) protocols and continued to build that knowledge at the community level, to ensure a better and broader understanding of referral pathways.

WFP introduced climate-smart farming practices under its livelihood support programmes, also supported the government to finalise a national climate adaptation strategy and design a funding framework as part of a pitch to the Global Environmental Facility.
