CONCLUSIONS

The CSP aligned with national objectives and demonstrated appropriate adaptation to context, while its gender considerations could have been stronger

Positive results were observed in areas in which WFP has an established position and credibility within the sector: assistance to refugees; nutrition and agriculture

Support to refugees faced challenges due to shifting government policies but WFP adapted and continued providing food assistance

WFP used its resources efficiently, adapting appropriately to changing circumstances

RECOMMENDATIONS

1
Focus on thematic areas where the Country Office has demonstrated added value, including support to refugees, nutrition and agriculture, and apply a long-term view

2
Ensure the change pathways across the CSP are explicit

3
Set up operational framework to analyse performance data for effective adaptive management decisions

4
Assess operating model readiness to understand risks and opportunities that are important to reflect in programme design

* the CSP was extended by one year to align with the UNSDCF
