Nordic and Baltic Office

The Nordic countries – Denmark, Finland, Iceland, Norway and Sweden – are some of the most food-secure nations in the world with robust agricultural systems, advanced technology and comprehensive social safety nets ensuring that their population have reliable access to sufficient, safe and nutritious food.

This stands in stark contrast to many of the regions where WFP operates, where conflict, climate change and economic instability severely compromise food security.

Global hunger remains at record levels in today's post-pandemic world, with 343 million people expected to face acute hunger in 2025. Every day, WFP reaches millions of people across the world with emergency food assistance, nutrition programs and operations to strengthen long-term food security.

The Nordic countries are vital partners for WFP, enabling our lifesaving and life-changing operations. As top donors of flexible funding, the Nordics also enhance our ability to make strategic and timely life-saving responses while in parallel investing in longer-term activities that help reduce needs over time.

In 2024, the Nordics were collectively the 5th largest donor to WFP, contributing more than USD 482 million to help us reach the most food-insecure people around the world.

The Nordic and Baltic Office

The WFP Nordic and Baltic Office serves as a strategic entry point for public and private stakeholders in the region with an interest in fighting hunger together with WFP.

The Office is dedicated to building new and innovative partnerships with Nordic stakeholders engaged in the development of sustainable food systems, as well as to strengthening and expanding WFP's collaboration with existing partners.

We also aim to enhance broad political engagement to ensure food security remains a key priority for Nordic and Baltic governments and expand WFP's engagement with Nordic and Baltic private sector actors to leverage the region's innovative business environment and world-leading expertise in areas such as technology and logistics.

The Office also carries out engagement with other external partners in the region, such as academia and civil society, and communicates the work of WFP to the broader public through engagement with traditional and social media.

The WFP Nordic and Baltic Office is located in the UN City in Copenhagen, Denmark.
