Situation Update

- Data collection for the Food Security and Nutrition Monitoring System (FSNMS), has been completed in 92 percent of planned sites, while it is ongoing in some other sites. So far 7,200 households have been covered by this countrywide survey. The Integrated Food Security Phase Classification (IPC) workshop is planned from 29th January to 9th February in Juba.
- WFP seeks to ensure that gender and protection are core components of all of its' activities. One method employed is conducting capacity building initiatives to generate awareness and provide WFP personnel and cooperating partners with practical tools. On 12 January the gender and protection section conducted a one day training session for 20 Cash Based Transfer (CBT)/SCOPE field monitors. The participants were provided with practical tools and guidance on gender, protection mainstreaming and Prevention of Sexual Exploitation and Abuse (PSEA).
- The gender and protection section also participated in a needs assessment conducted by the innovation section in Maban and Renk on the impact of cash-based interventions. Integrating gender and protection into such assessments is indispensable to understanding vulnerabilities, capacities, preferences and identifying any possible protection risks.
